

Assistant Professor Position in the Research Section of Mountain Hazards, Disaster Prevention Research Institute, Kyoto University

July 14th, 2025

The Disaster Prevention Research Institute (DPRI), Kyoto University invites applications for an Assistant Professor position.

Location: Research Division of Geohazards, Geohazards Research Group, Disaster Prevention Research Institute, Kyoto University, Gokasho, Uji, Kyoto 611-0011, Japan (at home or other places if University allows or orders to work remotely).

Job description and required qualifications:

To achieve hazard evaluation for the mitigation of mountainous disaster, the appointed assistant professor is required to conduct research aimed at revealing and modelling the mechanisms of weathering and deformation of rock masses, as well as landslides and erosion on hillslopes, on the basis of geological and geomorphological field surveys, hydrological and geotechnical monitoring, physical and chemical analysis of subsurface materials, and geospatial information analysis. In particular, the candidate is expected to focus on advanced research to elucidate the interaction between physicochemical rock weathering, gravitational deformation, and hydrological processes in the hillslopes by combining ground-based investigations and monitoring with laboratory tests and analyses. Additionally, the candidate will have responsibility for education in the Division of Earth and Planetary Sciences, Graduate School of Science, Kyoto University. The candidate must hold a Ph.D. or an equivalent degree at the commencement of employment.
